Jones, Morabito, Gegg tackle the field at the MI Open

Tales of woe and triumph fill this edition of Chess Chatter as a triumvirate of PHCC heroes in-waiting took to the highways this past Labor Day weekend crossing swords with some of the state's finest chess players in the grueling 7 round, 180 player event hosted by the Michigan Chess Association September 4th through the 7th in Lansing. Despite a very top heavy open section, Matt and Alan brought home some scalps and a few rating points for their efforts, but the Reserve section proved to be Kryptonite for Avery as he could do no better than break even, losing a ton of rating points.

Although the camaraderie for our trio was stellar, their assessment of tournament setting and conditions left a bit to be desired as a variety of communications, noise and scheduling issues complicated play.

Thankfully, each managed to salvage some of their games and forwarded them, with some limited commentary, for preview in the Members' Games Section of Chess Chatter.

Members' Games

Please send me what you consider your best games, annotated or not, so that I might be able to showcase them. The following games represent contests that have been available at the time of this printing. Email them to me or give them to me personally, if you wish. Majority of analyses is done by Fritz 12, unless otherwise indicated.

Comments below are from Alan Gregg:

I am not to happy with these games, I don't believe they are very good games and also have not received Vlad's game. (Referring to his 6th round game vs. Vladimir Druklec which he seems to have misplaced.)

Game1: I made a big mistake in the ending... just 22.Re3 holds everything Rd1 just lost. I put it down to time pressure and playing an

IM.

The next two games feature Avery Jones who wrote:

Hello Lon,

I am sorry I did not get this to you earlier. These are not games that anyone will learn anything good from, these are games that I have played and wondered WHY they turned out so.

I will start using a tool to record my games, Plycount. That way I will be able to review them accurately but more important, I will be able to send them to you in a more timely manner.

I include this game because it illustrates how sometimes I play really poorly, for absolutely no reason. My opponent who could be a future young gun, just kept coming after I gave him a chance. He won a game he deserved to win, and one I chose to lose based on my poor play...I have to say that going over this game was quite upsetting, for example I did not start off with the thought of playing the Stonewall, the opportunity just presented itself. That was the only thing I did right, everything else -wrong. For example, the bishop at b4, I should have just moved my knight, and pushed c3, that bishop was trapped for some time. Second thing, why did I trade off my rooks, I moved them up and allowed them to be traded -awful! I should have moved the rook over to h3, then the king would have certainly had to stay to protect the h pawn, giving me time to come up with a more long term plan. Also my queen bishop was placed in the right direction to participate in the plan. Nope, I did not do any of it?????

I always enjoy the World Open, lots of chess, and you can see the boards of the top players, to see how they play. I was going through some difficulties at this time with my chess. I felt that I was not making any progress. I talked to other players, and they say that because I get so many draws, I should try to attack more. One revelation made to me was "You can attack and miss, and still not lose, but if you are attacked and try to defend, your defense must be perfect or you will lose." So here I am, round 8, thoughts running through my head, about attacking and defending.

After all the fighting on the board AND against the clock, my time management skills in this game were terrible. To illustrate this point, my opponent had 6 minutes after move 29, I had 2 minutes. Yes, you read that correctly. Back to the game, after all the horrible moves on both sides, I could have won the game at move 50, I just had to play b2 then move the a pawn up and finish. About 8 years ago, I was playing in the Canadian Amateur, and everything was clicking. The moves just came to me, I don't know where that player has gone to but I find myself thinking about him a lot these days. Perhaps I have taken in so much information about chess and it is too much. Ah but this is chess, when you try something and you see results over the board, there is the joy of winning [or not losing], but sometimes there is the greater joy of "Yes, I am on the right track!"

In a few weeks I will take myself out to Las Vegas for the Millionaire Chess tournament ...please pray for me.

PHCC Rating Lists

The following list represents only current members of the Port Huron Chess Club. Current USCF ratings were used for members that had them, in order to establish the initial club rating list. The USCF rating format is used as the basis for calculating our club rating list. Members that had no USCF ratings are given a provisional rating based on their performances against regular club members who had USCF ratings. Club rated events will use these ratings for pairing purposes.
